Ohio Universities Planning Energy Pinch Fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Between 500 and 1,000 scientists at Ohio universities are ready to put "their shoulders to the wheel" in an attack on the energy shortage, the chairman of the Board of Regents said Friday.

Marvin Warner of Cincinnati said the 12 state-supported universities and two private colleges have submitted a list of 325 energy conservation projects they are prepared to pursue.

He said the regents hope to authorize the institutions within 30 days to apply for federal funding for the various programs.

The schools are cooperating with the Ohio Energy Resource and Development Agency (OERDA) to bring all of their research potential to bear on the problem.

Warner told a news conference before the regular regents meeting that formation of the research group and listing of energy related research is "one of the most important things to happen in Ohio."

He said the group could result in Ohio being "No. 1 in energy research."

During the regular meeting, the board adopted a revised rule dealing with approval of doctoral programs and doctoral degrees awarded by universities.

The action followed considerable debate on a provision that representatives of the University of Dayton and Case Western Reserve University—private colleges—serve with officials of the 12 state universities to plan and coordinate the development of new doctoral degree programs.

Chairman James A. Norton told Regent Donald Huber of Dayton that the "challenge" of the regents was "not to worry about public or private institutions but education for all Ohioans."

Huber expressed concern about permitting private universities to have a voice in approving programs at public institutions. And Regent Paul Belcher of Akron said he had "grave doubts" about the legality of allowing the Advisory Committee of Graduate Deans to approve programs at private institutions.

The board also approved appointment of an advisory committee to help establish six Area Health Education Centers in Ohio. Creation of the 16 member committee was necessary to allow federal financing of the health centers.

The purpose of the health centers is to try to funnel more adequately trained health personnel into areas of the state which suffer from a lack of health services.

Lighter Energy Tax Studied By House Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key House committee, approving a new tax designed to encourage utilities to switch to coal, wants a levy half as stiff as President Carter proposed.

The 19-1 vote Friday by the Ways and Means Committee approved a tax on industry and utilities using oil and natural gas to raise $44.6 billion, compared with the $90.5 billion Carter's proposal would have raised.

The tax would be in effect from 1979 to 1985.

The panel is expected to decide next week on a system for returning to industries and utilities most of the money they would have to pay under the levy.

Officials have said the tax approved by the committee would result in a savings equivalent to 3 million barrels of oil daily by 1985. Carter's proposal envisioned saving 3.3 million barrels daily.

The entire administration energy program, proposed in April, aims at saving roughly 4.5 million barrels of oil daily. The country currently uses 17.4 million barrels of oil a day.

The committee approved several exemptions, including one to permit firms to use 50,000 barrels of oil a year, or an equivalent amount of natural gas, before the tax takes effect.

Carter proposed a smallusers exemption of 85,000 barrels of oil a year, but said firms using more than 250,000 barrels annually should pay the tax on their full consumption.

The committee called for a tax of 30 cents a barrel to begin in 1979, rising gradually to $3 a barrel by 1985. Carter wanted a tax starting at 90 cents in 1979 and rising to $3 in 1985.

Industrial natural gas would be taxed at 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet in 1979, reaching $1.10 in 1985. That compares with Carter's recommended average of 39 cents in 1979 and $1.89 in 1985.

In all instances, the tax would be adjusted annually starting in 1981 to account for inflation.

Utilities would start to pay a tax in 1983 at $1.50 a barrel of oil, as Carter proposed. The use of natural gas by utilities would be taxed beginning in 1983 at 55 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, 65 cents in 1984 and 75 cents in 1985 under the committee version.

The President suggested $1.34, $1.53 and $1.89.

'Tecumseh!' Actor Natural For Role As Frontiersman

THE GENTLE GIANT — Bruce Dickinson, left, towers above other principal actors in "Tecumseh!" Steve Stevenson, Dan Brown, and Jay Barnhill. The outdoor drama set on Sugarloaf Mountain near Chillicothe will open its fifth season Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m.

In the dark, secluded woodland of the Sugarloaf Mountain lives a man of the wilderness. Daniel Boone? Bigfoot?

No, it's Bruce Dickinson.

He resides in the lofty hills of Ross County, braving fierce winters and befriending animals. He lives off the land.

The stage is set for excitement and it literally is, for Dickinson is a member of the cast of "Tecumseh!"

In the outdoor drama, held annually at the Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheater, Dickinson portrays the frontiersman, Simon Kenton.

Though Dickinson is truly a giant with a 6-foot, 8-inch frame, he is certainly the "gentle giant."

He is a doctor for all injured animals, and has a deep feeling for the outdoors and the creatures that inhabit it.

Even though in the past Dickinson handled all the weapons used in the play, he finds hunting for sport a very barbaric process.

During the play's off season, Dickinson resides in a mobile home on Sugarloaf Mountain. Originally from Iowa, Dickinson says "Ohio has yet to see a cold winter."

Teacher Yielding To Rules

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Mary Beckler's mind was made up for her after she had been helping others make up their minds for 60½ years. She said she hadn't made up her mind about retiring until the Nelsonville-York school board enacted a mandatory retirement rule this year.

The pupils and faculty of Poston Elementary School turned out in full force on the last day of school June 8 to honor her with skits, poems, letters and songs. First grader Phillip Venrick gave her a bouquet of daisies.

Mrs. Beckler had ended her career as a second grade teacher at Poston. Until she moved to Poston school in 1960 she had never taught in a classroom with only one grade. Poston was only the third school of her career.

The one-and-two-room rural schools with several grades in each room were common two generations ago and were most familiar to Mrs. Beckler. "Children were better readers in the earlier years," she recalled, explaining that the older ones helped the youngsters.

Mrs. Beckler taught three generations of some families and many of the adults who came to honor her had been her pupils.

"I once thought I'd probably retire at the end of this year even without the mandatory retirement enacted by the board," she said. "But to look out and see the children at play makes me wonder if I really would have. I'll surely miss them."

School officials read a telegram of tribute from Gov. James A. Rhodes. Rep. Claire Ball Jr., R-91 Athens, presented her a copy of a resolution of praise from the legislature.

"I don't know how worthy I am," she responded. "But I'm most grateful."

What Is A Drug?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of six articles on drugs to be printed Saturdays in the Herald. On July 30, a number of essay questions to which boys and girls from the ages of 10 to 16 can respond. Winners will be chosen from each age group and will be taken to an expenses paid trip to a Cincinnati Reds baseball game.

Since this is the first of the upcoming six articles on drugs, we should start off by defining the word drug.

If we were to make a list of all the drugs we could think of, I wonder how many of us would leave alcohol, aspirin, tobacco, coffee, vitamins, as well as many other very common drugs off of our lists. I would imagine quite a few of us, and yet these are all drugs.

If it is hard for us to think of, let's say, Vitamin C as a drug, maybe it's because we don't understand what a drug is. Maybe the word drug scares us. Maybe we think that medicine and drugs are the same thing. Or maybe we just can't picture some one getting "high" on an orange. Whatever the reason, I think it is important to understand drugs for what they really are.

A drug by definition is any chemical substance that changes the structure or function of body tissue. Now if you think about that for a minute, that would make just about anything we swallow or otherwise put into our bodies, a drug. For the sake of convenience, however, we do not generally classify food as a drug, but it is important to realize that everything we put into our bodies affects our bodies.

Take sugar as an example. The chemical formula for sugar is C12 H22 O11. It has been known for some time that sugar affects the insulin level in our bodies, and in large doses may be dangerous or even fatal to some people. At the same time sugar gives us energy and to some extent seems to be important in the proper functioning of the body.

The point is that sugar itself is really neither good nor bad, it depends on how one uses it. The object is to get the right amount of the right chemicals in the right place at the right time. Another way of saying this is that we need a good steady diet to stay happy and healthy. Anyone who has ever had a stomach ache from eating too much chocolate can tell you what it is like to put too much of the wrong chemical in the wrong place at the wrong time. Likewise, if we don't get the right chemicals in the right amount we can become very sick.

We will discuss the various drugs, (chemicals), in greater detail in the upcoming articles, but for right now you might stop and think for a moment what an incredible and complex wonder your body is, and remember that how well it does what you want it to do depends a great deal on what you put into it. You have only one body, and if you don't take care of it, you won't be around very long.

Take the time to find out how your body works, and the things that keep it working.

Perhaps we wouldn't need so many of the chemicals called "medicine" if we ate more of the right chemicals called "food."

See you next week!

Coffee Prices

Reduced Again

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Folger Coffee Co. has reduced the price of coffee for the second time since it peaked at $4.43 per pound May 12.

The decrease of 30 cents per pound, announced Thursday, has brought the price down 75 cents, the company said.

Pat Hayes, a company spokesman, said the reductions reflect wholesale price declines in green coffee prices.

Hayes said a significant industry-wide decline had been noted in consumer coffee sales during the past several months. He said the decline was "in excess of 20 per cent."

Boys State Under Way

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 1,400 high school juniors arrived at Ohio University today to participate in the 40th Buckeye Boys State, a weeklong school in self-government.

Delegates will spend the week organizing mythical political parties and choosing officers for state, county and city offices. Four days are set aside for operating the government.

On Wednesday, members of Gov. James A. Rhodes' cabinet are expected to visit and spend the day with their counterparts.

Rhodes will address delegates Tuesday and Lt. Gov. Richard Celeste will be the speaker for Monday night's assembly.

Speakers for the opening ceremonies tonight will be Chester F. Stellar of Creston, who is Buckeye Boys State board president; Robert Kliepstone of West Milton, state American Legion commander, and Ohio University President Charles Ping.

Highway Safety Markings Slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Transportation Director David L. Weir announced Friday that installation of a half-million raised reflective road markers in 3,000 locations around the state will begin in mid-July.

Weir said the system will make driving on Ohio's secondary roads safer, especially at night and in inclement weather because the markers are raised about an inch above the pavement, assuring that headlight beams reflect off them.

Snow plow operations had prevented use of the markers in Ohio until recent development of a ramp-shaped steel housing to contain them during plowing.

Weir said locations for the markers were selected through computer analysis of accident records.

Weir said the system will make driving on Ohio's secondary roads safer, especially at night and in inclement weather because the markers are raised about an inch above the pavement, assuring that headlight beams reflect off them.

Snow plow operations had prevented use of the markers in Ohio until recent development of a ramp-shaped steel housing to contain them during plowing.

Weir said locations for the markers were selected through computer analysis of accident records.

Fireblight Affects Apples And Pears

Fireblight, caused by a bacterium, is a very destructive disease of apple and pear. It is a disease of more than 70 other plant species including quince, pyracantha, spirea, hawthorn, and mountain ash.

FIREBLIGHT IN APPLE

Although it affects blossoms, twigs, leaves and fruits of apple and pear, twigblight is the most obvious phase. Leaves on infected terminals suddenly become light to dark brown and remain attached throughout the summer and fall. The ends of infected shoots bend down and back resembling a shepherd's crook. However, the first evidence of fireblight is usually blossom blight. The blossoms suddenly wilt and turn brown to black.

As infection progresses down the pedicels, the tissues become water-soaked and dark green, then brown. Droplets of milky ooze appear on the surface of infected tissues. These drops contain thousands of bacteria capable of inciting new infections. Infection may continue down into the spur and into the leaves and wood.

Twigblight start with infection of the young tender growing tip. Once established, infection can move rapidly, 8 to 12 inches per day, toward the base of the twig and on into older wood. By late summer, cankers can be seen on the older wood at the base of dead twigs and branches. In the spring, bacteria ooze from the margins of these cankers and are spread by insects, rain, and wind.

Control: Fireblight, like most plant bacterial diseases, is very hard to control but can be greatly reduced by planting the more resistant cultivars, using good sanitary practices and spraying properly. Although fireblight can and does occur on all common cultivars of apple and pear, it is most destructive to Jonathan, Rome Beauty, Wealthy, Transparent and Idared apples and Bartlett, Clapp Favorite, and Bosc pears. However, most of the more desirable pear cultivars are so susceptible that fireblight is a serious problem.

Sanitation consists of thoroughly examining the trees at least once a week from the time blossoms appear in the spring until early August, and immediately removing all blighted twigs, spurs, etc. Break or cut infected parts off 6 to 8 inches below the lowest point of visible infection. If removal is made by cuts, avoid spreading the bacteria by disinfecting the blades of the cutting tool by dipping them in 10 percent household bleach solution between each cut. Before moving on to something else, remove this diseased material from the vicinity of the trees and burn, bury, or otherwise dispose of it.

Use nitrogen fertilizers very sparingly around pears and susceptible apple cultivars.

Streptomycin, an antibiotic, is the most effective spray material. Use a spray of 50 to 100 parts per million. For the more susceptible apple cultivars 3 sprays of 50 parts per million applied in early bloom, full bloom and petal-fall are usually adequate. For pears, use 100 parts per million and apply the first spray when the first blossoms open. Apply additional sprays every 4 or 5 days through the bloom period. Although there are highly purified streptomycin preparations, the agricultural grade is very satisfactory and much more reasonably priced.

Harvest Wheat Early For Higher Yield

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There are some advantages to be gained from harvesting wheat early, about June 25, it was reported recently by Delbert M. Byg, Extension Agricultural Engineer at The Ohio State University. He suggested that the ideal time to start harvesting is when wheat reaches 20 per cent moisture. Total yield will be the greatest then, with highest test weights and less due to shatter, birds, rodents, and machine harvest.

Of course, drying facilities will be required for wheat harvested at 20 per cent moisture, or arrangements may be made for custom drying.

Starting harvest at 20 per cent moisture rather than waiting until wheat dries down to 14 per cent can mean putting an extra 1 to 3 bushels per acre in the elevator. There is usually less trouble with secondary weed growth, too, when harvest is early.

If starting at 20 per cent is good, would starting at 25 per cent be better? No, Byg said, because kernel damage would increase from 1 per cent to 4 per cent for more. Market penalties would increase by 12 to 18 cents a bushel or $6 to $9 an acre.

The idea is to start harvest when the wheat tests 20 per cent moisture and finish up before it drops below 14 per cent, said the engineer.

Poison Ivy Season Is Here

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

"Leaflets three, let it be" is the old saying people have used to warn their children against poison ivy. And, it will work today. Just keep in mind the characteristic three leaflets and that the flowers and fruit are always in clusters on slender stems that originate in the axis of the leaves. Fruits usually have a white, waxy appearance and ordinarily are not hairy; however, they may be, in some forms. Also, the plants do not always flower and bear fruit.

POISON IVY

Elton M. Smith, Extension Horticulturist at the Ohio State University, tells us that poison ivy grows in several forms: (1) woody vines attached to trees or objects for support, (2) erect woody shrubs without support, and (3) trailing shrubs, mostly on the ground.

Usually, it is found in the vine form, he says. Poison ivy flourishes in the woods, any place where soil moisture is plentiful, or in very dry sites on the most exposed hillsides. Mostly, the plants are seen along fence rows, edges of paths and roadways, over rock walls and climbing posts and trees. It is not unusual to find poison ivy in the home landscape among trees, shrubs and perennial flower gardens.

The skin irritant of poison ivy is found in all parts of the plant, including roots and fruit, with the greatest amount in the sap. Poisoning is usually, but not always, caused by contact with some part of the plant. A very small quantity of the poisonous substance is capable of producing severe inflammation of the skin and can easily be transferred from one object to another. Clothing may become contaminated and is often a source of prolonged infection. Dogs and cats, after touching the plant, can transmit the poison to humans. Smoke from burning plants will carry the toxin and has been reported to cause severe cases of poisoning.

You can control poison ivy by mechanical means or with herbicides. When the soil is soft, following rains, roots can be dug and pulled out in long pieces. If roots break off in the ground, sprouting usually occurs from the remaining sections. Eradication by grubbing is permanent if well done; however, care should be taken to avoid contact with the plants. Clothing, including the gloves, should be washed thoroughly or burned after use, Smith says.

Poison ivy vines climbing on trees should be cut at the base and as many as possible pulled away from the tree. Roots and stems removed in grubbing should be destroyed since the dry material is almost as poisonous as the fresh. Constant mowing or cutting of young shoots will deplete the stored food supply in the roots. This must be continued until the plants are killed.

Herbicides may be used to kill the plants. The herbicide 2,4-D, sprayed on the foliage kills the leaves and may kill the roots; however, if regrowth occurs, re-treat as needed. The ester form of 2,4-D acts more quickly, particularly on woody plants.

Amino triazole, sold under at least two brand names, is particularly effective in controlling poison ivy, especially in late spring or early summer. If necessary re-treat when leaves are fully expanded. Since this weed killer is systemic in the plant, permanent control can be expected with 2 or 3 applications. Regardless of herbicide used, use a course spray when the air is still to minimize possibilities of spray drift. Always avoid contact of the spray with desired ornamentals, as the herbicides will kill your shrubs as well.

News For Homemakers

By BEVERLY SEYMOUR BECHTEL
County Extension Agent,

An interesting food additive with the same sweetening properties as ordinary sugar is actually available to the U.S. Market, and it isn't saccharin. It's xylitol. The following information was sent from the Xylitol Products Information Bureau along with several samples of peppermint gum sweetened with xylitol. I passed the gum around the office and it was quite tasty.

"Finnish scientists at the University of Turku report studies showing that an obscure product known as xylitol has the same sweetening properties as ordinary sugar, yet is non-cariogenic when used as the sweetening agent in chewing gum. The gum used in their tests is just becoming available in the U.S.

The Finnish dental researchers have studied xylitol since 1972, most recently completing tests in which xylitol chewing gum was compared with a regular sucrose gum. Among 100 students, one group ate a typical sucrose sweetened diet, including ordinary gum, while another group ate the same food but chewed from three to seven pieces of xylitol gum daily. The all-sucrose group averaged three new cavities after a year while the xylitol group did not develop a single new cavity. The sweetener used in the gum was the only difference.

A larger test, involving 450 junior high school students, has just been funded on Long Island, New York, by the National Institute of Dental Research. In this $210,000 project, the students will compare the results of chewing xylitol-sweetened sugarless gum with ordinary sugarless gum, over a period of three years.

Xylitol has been known for years since it occurs naturally in many plants, and is manufactured by the human body, but the Finns have succeeded in producing it commercially by extracting it from birch trees. New chewing gum made with xylitol is being sold in Europe and the United States. Xylitol has been listed as a safe food additive by the FDA since 1963.

Anyone interested in xylitol can get information and a free sample of the Finnish gum used in the University of Turku studies by sending a self-addressed envelope to the Xylitol Products Information Bureau, Box 80, Cresskill, New Jersey 07626."

After the U.S. Executive Mansion was burned by the British in 1814, only the walls were left standing. When it was restored in 1818 these walls were painted white to obliterate all traces of the fire and it has been known as the White House ever since.

I would like to point out that the above information does not say anything about the nutritional content of xylitol. Does it have more of calories than sugar? Are there other nutrients in it? What about cost? How does it compare to sugar? What about people on dietary restrictions?

While on the topic of nutrition and sugar products, are you aware that in many areas "junk food" is permitted to be sold during meal times in the public schools? The issue was presented in a recent Community Nutrition Institute newsletter as follows:

"The issue of whether USDA should regulate the sale of competitive foods in school cafeterias during mealtimes will be the center of debate when the Senate Agriculture Committee's child nutrition bill (s.1420) reaches the floor sometime this month.

Current law prohibits USDA from regulating the sale of competitive foods during regular school mealtimes when proceeds from those sales benefit schools or student activities. Thus, candy, gum, soft drinks and similar items now can be sold from vending machines at any time unless an individual state or local school board disapproves.

The Committee bill includes a provision sponsored by Sen. Clifford P. Chase (R-N.J.) that in effect would restore USDA's authority to limit the types of competitive foods that could be sold. The Department lost that authority in 1972; the Senate has voted twice since then to restore it but has been overruled in conference with the House.

Some Senators, backed by candy industry and other lobbyists, are expected to fight the case provision on the floor.

The Case provision is supported by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, the American School Food Service Association (ASFS), the Society for Nutrition Education (SNE), and other nutrition groups. All stress that it would not ban vending machines from schools but only allow USDA to limit vendible foods to "more nutritional" alternatives such as fruits and dairy products.

Many of these vending machines dispense items which I don't allow my kids to have before they eat their lunch, and there are some who say that's undemocratic. Bergland said recently on television in response to a questioner. But in fact, our children are not permitted to have a candy bar before dinner because we don't think it's good for them. They can have the candy bar some other time.

Currently what's happening is children are buying candy and soda pop for meals rather than getting a good quality meal at lunch. At a time when we're beginning to recognize nutritional problems in young children, it's important that the school setting provide an example for healthy eating habits.

Several school districts and at least one state have tried to ban competitive foods from public school vending machines. The West Virginia Board of Education voted unanimously to ban such sales beginning last year and developed a list of food alternatives that could be sold such as fruits, nuts, soups, dairy products and even pretzels.

Although response by local educators to the junk food ban was reportedly favorable, the state legislature reversed the ban, retaining only the recommended food list.

If you feel strongly about junk food being allowed to be sold during mealtime at school, write your U.S. Congressman.

ECONOGRAM

ECONOMIC INFORMATION RELATING TO AGRICULTURE

Unemployment fell to 6.9 per cent of the labor force in May despite a substantial 398,000 person increase in the labor force. This is the lowest jobless rate in 30 months, down from 7 per cent in April, and reflects a 385,000 increase in the number of persons with jobs. Increasing employment suggests that personal income should continue to rise, providing continued stimulus for economic growth even if some of the longer employed workers begin to replenish savings in the months ahead. But, rising employment is also causing more people, particularly women, to enter the job market. In May, 62.2 per cent of the non-institutionalized civilian population over 16 years of age was either employed or seeking employment, the highest labor force participation rate on record.

U.S. food bill totaled just under $200 billion in 1976, up 7 per cent from the year before. This reflects a 3 per cent increase in average food prices, the smallest increase since 1971, and a sizeable increase in total food use. About 75 per cent of this was spent for food consumed at home while the remainder was spent at restaurants, fast food stores and other establishments away from home. On the average, food expenditures accounted for 16.8 per cent of total disposable personal income, down from 17.1 per cent in 1975.

Farm equipment purchases have been mixed so far this year, however, outlook for the remainder of the year suggests that sales are likely to lag behind last year. Tractor sales through April were down 0.6 per cent from last year while baler sales were up slightly. Combine sales declined 13 per cent and mower-conditioner sales were off 24 per cent. For tractors, sales of both 4-wheel drive and under 100 h.p. units have declined while sales of 2-wheel drive, 100 h.p. plus units increased 16 per cent. Wholesale prices are up about 9 per cent, but large dealer inventories are moderating retail price increases. Outlook for cash receipts by farmers is uncertain, but most of any gain is expected from livestock rather than grain, thus demand for new equipment may not be particularly strong through balance of 1977.

Wheat prices look to remain under weakening pressure based upon recent reports of crop conditions in the U.S. and U.S.S.R. Agriculture Dept. estimates the 1977 winter wheat crop in the U.S. at 1.53 billion bushels, given June 1 conditions. This is 3 per cent above the month earlier estimate and significantly above last December's projections for 1.44 billion bushels. Thus, the winter wheat harvest, about 75 per cent of the total wheat crop, would be just short of last year's 1.57 billion bushels and 8 per cent below the record 1.65 billion bushels in 1975. In addition, wheat carryover looks to be 1.1 billion bushels, about three times more than during the early part of the 1970's. Favorable weather this spring in the Soviet Union suggests a huge grain crop there this year, perhaps as high as 215 million metric tons, their third largest. Thus, Soviet purchases of U.S. wheat may be relatively small in 1977-78.

Soybean supplies are shrinking rapidly, thus upward pressure on prices seems likely to continue until new crop comes to market. Total supplies for the Sept. 1976 - Aug. 1977 marketing year were down 13 per cent. However, until prices moved up to about the $10 per bushel level in May, total utilization was running about three per cent above the previous year's pace. In May, both domestic

Mulches Serve Many Purposes

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

This may be one of the best years to mulch your flower and vegetable crops.

Mulch is a layer of peat moss, shredded bark, or similar material that you spread on the surface of the soil under and around plants. Mulches improve plant growth, enhance the appearance of the landscape, and reduce time spent in maintenance.

The most common reason for using mulches is to eliminate or at least retard weeds, says Elton M. Smith, Extension Horticulturist at The Ohio State University. Where the mulch layer is sufficiently deep, few weeds will grow. Also, by reducing the amount of soil water evaporation, mulches conserve moisture that is particularly important during droughty periods such as those being witnessed in most areas of the state now.

Mulches help maintain a uniform soil temperature, Smith says. They act as an insulation in keeping the soil warmer during cool spells and cooler during the warm months. By maintaining uniform soil temperatures, freeze-thaw cycles during the winter are retarded and heaving of perennial plants is reduced.

Mulch increases the water holding capacity of light, sandy soils and increases aeration of heavy, clay soils as the mulch gradually becomes mixed with the basic soil.

Organic mulches serve as food for many micro-organisms found in the soil. During decomposition of the organic material, soil micro-organisms secrete a sticky material that promotes the granulation of the soil. The mulch also maintains more stable temperatures for the activity of the micro-organisms can prevail at an even rate.

Mulches also serve to keep leaves, flowers and fruits of plants free from soil. This is very important in strawberry production, tomatoes, a rock garden, etc.

The time to apply a mulch is in mid-spring when the soil has sufficiently warmed up for active root growth. If applied too early, it will keep the soil too cool and root growth will be slowed.

crushing and exports eased back in response to high soybean prices and related high prices for soybean meal which make it less competitive with cottonseed meal and meat scraps as a protein feed ingredient. May domestic crush fell to 63 million bushels from 80 million last May and exports fell to 11 million bushels weekly from 15 million earlier this spring. Continued high prices appear necessary to hold demand down in line with available supplies until harvest of new crop begins.

If planting is done in the fall, apply mulch immediately so that soil temperatures will be kept warmer longer.

Most mulches should be applied at least 2 to 3 inches deep over the entire area where plants are being grown. Herbaceous plants that require winter protection may require an additional 1 to 2 inches, in autumn around the crown or base of the plant.

Some mulches such as straw, strawy manure and various kinds of hulls of grains may have seed of weeds in them and in applying these mulches, you may introduce new weeds in your garden.

Often, additional fertilizer is needed to reduce the chance of nitrogen deficiency to your growing plants. Unless the mulch is well rotted, it will use nitrogen bacteria from the soil in its process of deterioration. Once the material is decomposed, it releases the nitrogen back to the soil, but this may be too late for your vegetable crop or flower garden growth. Weed chips, sawdust, crushed corn cobs, straw, shredded bark and the like need additions of fertilizer. Apply a complete lawn or garden fertilizer at the rate of two pounds per 100 square feet ahead of the mulch application. If foliage of plants becomes yellow during the growing season, apply more fertilizer.

News For Homemakers

An interesting food additive with the same sweetening properties as ordinary sugar is actually available to the U.S. Market, and it isn't saccharin. It's xylitol. The following information was sent from the Xylitol Products Information Bureau along with several samples of peppermint gum sweetened with xylitol. I passed the gum around the office and it was quite tasty.

"Finnish scientists at the University of Turku report studies showing that an obscure product known as xylitol has the same sweetening properties as ordinary sugar, yet is non-cariogenic when used as the sweetening agent in chewing gum. The gum used in their tests is just becoming available in the U.S.

Happiest Season

On the whole, the world votes in favor of summer. People lament its heat, they mop their overheated brows and they long for cooler weather. Yet popular lyrics about the "good old summer time" are not far wrong in depicting it as the year's most popular season. Few persons wax poetic about the good old winter time.

Tow views of summer are expressed in contrasting lines of poetry. Wrote James Thomson: "Night is far off, and hotter hours approach." Obviously, then, the course to pursue is to remove superfluous clothing, take oneself to the nearest swimming pool, enjoy life a little easier, and not fret over much about politics, the state of the economy, or Idi Amin.

The opposite view of summer is suggested by the words of Henry Longfellow, who wrote: "The air of summer was sweeter than wine."

Summer descends on the populace with scorching heat, but it opens doors that are closed in other seasons. A few hours of heat are a small price to pay for all the beauty and freedom the good old summer months bring.

Elevator Etiquette

By PHYLLIS BATTLELLE

NEW YORK — In the struggle for equality between the sexes, many of our morals have been struck down. Chivalry, for example, has been beaten into the ground as a chauvinistic relic of another era; and etiquette now is commonly found in books rather than reality. On subways and buses, it is ability which dictates who gets a seat, not historic etiquette; on street corners on a rainy Friday afternoon, it is the sprinter who gets the taxi, leaving the halt and lame and female spattered and shattered.

This is progress.

Yet a curious exception persists in this Emily-Post-Is-Extinct-Era... on elevators, as of old, it is Ladies First.

Women are allowed, even encouraged, to enter the elevator first and to exit first. It seems that here is man's last chance to show he is really gallant after all, and it doesn't cost him anything; on an elevator, he has to stand up anyway, so he can afford to be generous.

I think it's rather nice that the males of America take this one opportunity to show females how well-bred they are. But is it practical?

The problems arising from Elevator Etiquette begin at the lobby level, where the men herd themselves back while the women board first.

Now the lift is loaded, with the girls in the rear and the boys up front, some of them even still attempting to crush hats to chests at the risk of losing both to the sliding doors. Husbands and wives have been separated, often without having reached a firm decision on which floor they want, which calls for nervous overhead signals. And someone's child, who was gallantly ushered to the back with its mommy, is developing claustrophobia at seeing a tall wall of men between it and freedom.

Up they go, this Otis-load of segregated sexes, to the mezzanine.

The mezzanine, traditionally, is where the ladies' room is located. At least two women want to get off there.

Now, one by one, the men either stumble out or shinny up the elevator wall, allowing for the evacuation of the women. The ladies out, there are apologies all around, and the men reboard.

All the way up to the penthouse floor (where the insurance salesmen are meeting) this well-mannered pandemonium takes place. Women first in and first out, resulting in an unreasonable amount of shuffling and scuffling in the cause of conventional behavior and good manners. It is all quite proper... and takes a very long time.

Recognizing the problem is, of course, simpler than solving it. One hesitates to discourage the system, however impractical it is, since without it all vestiges of publicly-owned chivalry would vanish.

It has been suggested by some thinkers on the matter that, in office buildings where women are in as much of a hurry (if not more) to get to the upper floors, some revision in the system is in order. Perhaps office buildings could provide separate banks of elevators marked "his" and "hers."

This concept, however, could raise a new and dangerous spectre. With no sex differential to consider, the matter of age certainly would enter the picture: elderly women being expected to enter the elevator first, followed by beauties. It is upsetting to visualize the friction which could ensue.

No, apparently the only realistic and reasonable approach to elevator behavior is the "common sense system" now employed on buses, subways and rainy Fridays, whereby a woman gets preferential position only if she is lithe, quick and clever.

As some philosopher noted, "Woman has found her place in the sun. Now let her fine it in the elevator."

However, it may be difficult to stop the traditional polite shuffling policy still in existence, for two basic reasons:

The ladies-first on the elevator procedure is such a simple way for man to convince himself, and the world, that he is a kind and refined person.

And on elevators — as in airplanes — people are more superstitious, if not wary, than they are at ground level. There is something instinctively awesome about defying the law of gravity, however many times a day it is done. Psychiatrists and airline personnel often have noted that people are considerably better-behaved in the helpless confinement of planes than they are in grounded situations. Elevators provide a similar breeding ground for good manners. They will remain the last bastion of chivalry as long as man, deep in his subconscious, feels:

If this is to be my last trip, let it be taken with gentility.

4 Arrested In Slaying

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Four persons have been arrested after an attempted bank robbery that led to the first killing of a Lansing policeman in the line of duty.

Mac J. Donnelly Jr., a 35-year-old father of five, was killed when he confronted one of the robbers trying to flee with four hostages.

Donnelly, a nine-year veteran, fired several shots and wounded the suspect before falling mortally wounded. One hostage was also wounded.

Gregory Allen Lawrence, 19, of Ocala, Fla., and Robert Eric Schraw, 20, of Kokomo, Ind., were arraigned Thursday on charges of kidnaping and armed robbery, police spokesman Jim Wallace said.

Wallace said records showed Melanie Rae Lawrence Godbey, 21, of Ocala, Lawrence's sister, was arraigned on charges of conspiracy.

The identity of the wounded gunman was not released. Arraignments on murder charges were scheduled today in the county district court.

Personal Income Increase Slows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose six-tenths of a per cent in May, a smaller increase than the month before, the Commerce Department said today.

Income received last month for working, savings, investments and other sources totaled $1,507 billion, when projected over an entire year. The increase for May was $9.5 billion, compared with an increase of $11.1 billion, or eight-tenths of a per cent, in April.

Government economists said the increases are not measuring up to the average $15 billion increases in the first quarter, but said the economy was making up for losses in previous quarters.

"Where are the 'I told you so' cards?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I'm sitting at a table in a restaurant or at home and suddenly my heart jumps into my mouth. My heart thumps until I feel it will break out of my chest. This attack lasts about half an hour and then suddenly stops. It's a terrifying sensation. Could liquor do this?

Mr. V., Pa.

Dear Mr. V.:

It's remarkable how your description fits the condition called "paroxysmal tachycardia."

Anyone who has had such a sudden attack of rapid heartbeat would agree that it can "scare them to death."

Alcohol can very definitely be one of the causes of this runaway heartbeat. Some people are affected especially by brandy or cognac.

Excess tobacco, extreme fatigue and some drugs, particularly so-called "pep-up" pills, can also set off this disturbance.

Emotional tension, too, can produce a fluttering sensation, even in people who have perfectly normal hearts.

Although there is little likelihood that any deep-seated heart problem exists, it would be very wise to check it out with your doctor.

There are a number of excellent drugs that can reduce the frequency of these attacks and can break them when they do occur.

If you've learned by past experience that alcohol sets off such an attack, the answer is obvious. Cut down or cut out.

Is there more than one form of glaucoma? Which is the dangerous kind?

Mr. T. A., Kan.

Dear Mr. A.:

All glaucoma, especially those cases that are unrecognized and untreated, are dangerous. However, with prompt recognition and active treatment, blindness can be prevented in most instances.

No eye examination can be considered complete without the simple tonometer examination that measures increased pressure within the eyeball. This is the test for glaucoma.

There are two technical types. The most common is known as "open angle" glaucoma. It is this type that comes on gradually and may go unnoticed. The slight loss of vision may not be apparent. Therefore, the importance of the tonometer examination.

The "closed angle" glaucoma occurs less frequently. The technical differences are not important to the layman. What is important is that early diagnosis and early treatment with drugs and surgery, when necessary, can preserve vision.

Munch Exhibit

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Graphic Arts Gallery of the Virginia Museum recently acquired eight lithographs and color woodcuts by the Norwegian artist Edvard Munch, on long-term loan from the Norwegian Embassy in Washington. Munch (1863-1944), described as "perhaps the most important Norwegian artist ever," was one of the leaders of the expressionist Movement.

Saccharin was discovered by Constantine Fahlberg on Feb. 27, 1879. He was working under the direction of Professor Ira Remsen at Johns Hopkins University.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some nongovernmental job surveys made in recent weeks suggest that the employment situation is undergoing a decided improvement that might stretch well into 1978.

Information in the surveys tends to support those analysts who feel the jobless rate, now 6.9 per cent, could fall toward 6.5 per cent by the end of the year, instead of inching back over 7 as some fear.

The Help-Wanted Index, a monthly measurement of want ads in 51 key newspapers, continues to move steadily higher after having plunged during the recession, reaching a low of just 74 in March 1975.

The index standard is 100 for 1967, the alltime high 132 in 1973. The April reading of 109 represents a tremendous improvement and also suggests considerable improvement to come.

Kenneth Goldstein, in charge of the survey for the Conference Board, a nonprofit research organization, considers it an accurate barometer of things to come. It is used by the Commerce Department as an official figure.

Another survey, a quarterly study of 5,000 businessmen by Manpower, Inc. and the University of Michigan Survey Research Center, is expected to confirm the brightening picture when released June 28.

Job forecasts by the Manpower-Michigan group for the first two quarters were highly optimistic and, said survey sponsors, "were very accurate predictors of what has actually happened."

Based on answers from 700 employers, the College Placement Council expects job hunting for college graduates to continue to be easier in 1978. The current year represented a decided improvement over 1976. Employers hired 18 per cent more grads than a year ago, and more than half the respondents said they expected to employ about the same number in the 1977-78 school year.

The Council, a nonprofit organization of career counselors and placement officers at colleges and personnel officers of corporations, found that only 7 per cent anticipate a drop in job offers and that 6 per cent are uncertain.

Those with technical training, especially engineering, will continue to be the most sought after, the council believes, along with graduates in computer science, geology, geophysics, metallurgy and business.

The Endicott Report also found summer job prospects strong, with 32 per cent of 107 companies planning to hire more than a year ago.

Official figures from Washington show the May jobless rate fell one-tenth of 1 per cent to a seasonally adjusted 6.9 per cent, lowest in 30 months and symbolically important because it cracked the psychological barrier of 7 per cent.

After a brief respite from the festival circuit it is go go time again. Wednesday our Deercreek Dam Days Queen Becky Wolford rode in the Petunia Festival parade. It was fun to drive her through and hear all the favorable comments from parade watchers. The whole world loves a pretty girl. Immediately behind us in the parade line up was Pickaway County Queen of Queens Peggy Riffle. Peggy will be doing the honors for the Dam Festival at the Big Bend Regatta at Pomeroy this weekend and Queen Becky and her runner up Kim McCafferty will be in Middlefield for the Swiss Cheese festival.

Short column this week because yours truly has the summer bleakies or something of the nature or perhaps it's the fat, forty and frustrated syndrome. Whatever, it has me in its clutches.

Our dear friend Hazel Weaver who underwent surgery for amputation at Doctor's Hospital is expected to come home over the weekend. Do remember her with cards. Send to Route 5, Circleville, Ohio 43113.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care. Think About: To buy happiness you must spend kindness.

Man Given Probation

A Circleville man was placed on probation for 18 months after pleading guilty to a lesser charge in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Friday. James R. Lemaster, 146 Starkey Drive, was given probation after he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault.

He had been charged Dec. 12 with felonious assault. Lemaster must serve one month in the Pickaway County Jail, must pay the medical expenses of the victim, and must stay away from the victim and his family.

He was originally sentenced to six months in the county jail before probation was instituted.

Lemaster was indicted by the Grand Jury March 25.

Crop Insurance Reporting Date Is June 30

Farmers participating in the 1977 Federal Crop Insurance Program are reminded that the final date for reporting their planted acres of spring crops is June 30.

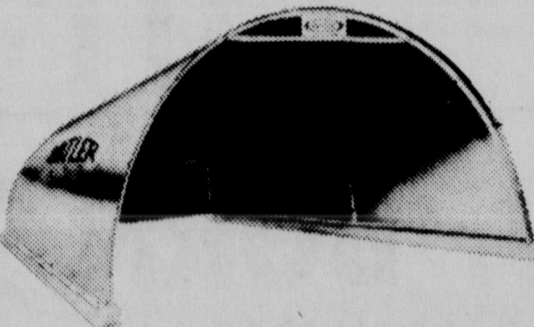

Forms for this purpose have been mailed to all 1977 insureds. Farmers are reminded that if the acreage is not reported prior to June 30 damaged crops could be uninsurable for the 1977 crop year under the terms of the contract.

Heavy signup in the 1977 program has resulted in extra heavy workloads in the local county offices, therefore, farmers must take it upon themselves to file their acreage report. Participation in the 1977 program is up some 20 per cent from the 1976 level according to Ben A. Jordan, Jr., director of the Indianapolis Regional Office for FCIC.

All those who plan to attend the VIP Grand Opening of Tecumseh Monday night should plan to arrive at the Scioto Society Amphitheater on Sugarloaf Mountain by 7:50 p.m. for the pre-performance activities. Tickets will be distributed to those who have made reservations between Friday and Sunday by chairman Mary Alice Greenwood except those made through Child Study League and Glenna Jo Wisecup has those tickets.

For those who are not familiar with the area it is suggested that you travel Route 23 South to Hopetown (a small settlement south of the Highway Patrol station). Turn left onto Sulphur Spring Road. Stay on this road until you come to Delano Rd. then turn right onto Delano go up the hill until you spot the amphitheater entrance sign and turn right again and continue to the parking area.

The theater can also be reached by traveling Route 23 South to Delano Rd. (which is just opposite the Fiesta Drive-in theater) turn left and stay on Delano until reaching the amphitheater entrance. One word of caution: by traveling Delano Rd. there is a set of railroad tracks to cross and trains do use these tracks plus it is a rather narrow crossing so be careful if a car is coming from the opposite direction. The tracks are located between Route 159 and Sulphur Spring Rd. so by going to Hopetown and up, the tracks are avoided. The choice is yours.

Excellent seats have been obtained and it should be a totally enjoyable evening out for the 65 adults and 10 children who have made reservations.

I attended my first Decorama party Monday evening and was pleased as punch to find an item that I had been searching for over a period of months. Also going from this vicinity were Kate Schleich, M. A. Greenwood, Pat Clark, and Ellen Rittinger. The party was held in the home of Brenda Caudill of Washington C. H. P.C. will be having one here in our community the first part of July.

Tuesday promises to be a fun evening for everyone interested in the art of puppetry. Students from Berea College will present shows at Community Square beginning at 7:30 p.m. Bring a chair, blanket etc. and be ready for entertainment. The show is scheduled to be over before dark so youngsters will have no problem returning to their homes. Anyone interested in learning more about puppets is reminded that there is a workshop being conducted next week at the YMCA by the Berea students. There is a nominal charge for the workshop which will be held 10 a.m. until 12 noon each day. For further information contact the Public Library.

The local Jaycees organization have undertaken the task of cleaning out the former Williamsport school gym and they can use all the volunteer help they can get. One evening has already been spent at the monumental project and a dent made in the job. If you are willing to devote a few hours please notify any Jaycee member or call President Douglas Steck at 986-6813.

Three generations of the Herrmann family held a reunion Sunday at the home of "Red" and Frances Fry. Thirty-two members of the clan were here from Canton, Wisconsin, Bellevue and locally. Cliff and Boots Ford of Canton have remained as houseguests of the Frys. The four are avid "antiquers" and collectors so the week has been spent in this pleasureable pastime.

Paul and Florence Ormsby of Milwaukee who flew in for the get together are the guests of her sister Rose Horch (Red is their brother). Coming by campers for the weekend were the Gasper family of Canton and the Roser family from Bellevue. Joining the cousins, aunts and uncles were Bill and Marcia Horch and images Sheryl and Kenneth.

The more daring members of the group went to Ross County Airport and thrilled to a ride in Bill Horch's private

Miss Harber, Mr. Bower Exchange Vows In May

MR. AND MRS. MARK L. BOWER

Miss Deborah L. Harber, daughter of Mrs. Betty L. Wilson, 1955 Sioux Drive, and Mr. Ronald F. Harber, 6603 Bell Station Road, and Mr. Mark L. Bower, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne L. Bower, Hitler Road, were united in marriage 2:30 p.m., May 21.

The Rev. Roy L. Heimbach performed the double ring ceremony before the altar of the Jefferson Church of Christ in Christian Union.

The church was decorated with vases of lavender, white and light blue daisies. The altar was flanked with seven branch candelabra.

Organist, Mrs. Kathryn Hill presented a program of nuptial selections. Vocalist was Mr. Gary Hubart.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and approached the altar on the arm of her father. For her wedding she chose a formal length gown of white organza trimmed with cluny lace. The sheer yoke bodice featured embroidery, seed pearls and ruffled cluny lace and went into a "wedding band" neckline with a lace collar. The sheer bishop sleeves were trimmed and cuffed with lace. The full A-line skirt with a double flounce around the hemline fell into the chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was edged with lace and held by a camelot cap of lace and pearls. Her only jewelry was a pair of white pearl earrings, a gift from the groom. She carried a colonial style bouquet of white daisies and white sweetheart roses with white love knot streamers. Miss Shannon Kaye Brown served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Vickie Jo Hott and Miss Beth Anne Bower, sister of the bridegroom.

Flower girl was Tonja Emily Wilson, sister of the bride. Ring bearer was Master Daniel William Parker.

Mr. William Allen Benner performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Mr. Mark Anthony Moss, Mr. Lee W. Dearth, and Mr. Michael Eric Harber, brother of the bride.

The reception was held in the Jefferson Memorial Hall following the ceremony. The cake and punch tables were adorned with vases of lavender, white and light blue daisies. The four tiered wedding cake was decorated with light blue and lavender, and was topped with a hand blown crystal ornament.

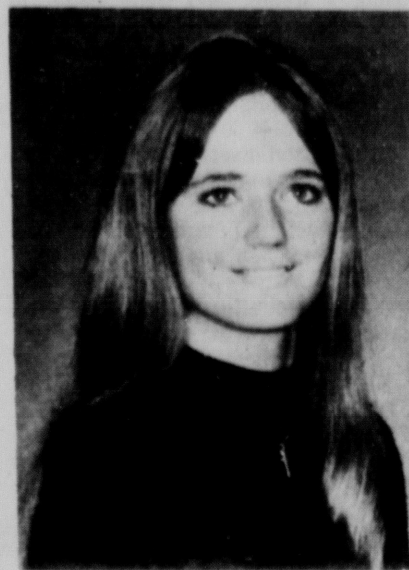

Hostesses were Miss Susan Mayberry, Miss Paula Dunham, Mrs. William Parker, Mrs. Frank Dearth, and Mrs. Morgan Ballentine. Mrs. Edward Baily presided at the guest register.

The bride is a graduate of Logan Elm High School and attended Columbus Technical Institute, she is currently employed by the Pickaway County Engineers office.

The bridegroom is a 1974 graduate of Logan Elm High School and is presently engaged in farming.

The couple will reside at 6057 Hitler Road No. 2.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Takes The Bite Out Of Friend's Argument

DEAR ABBY: I am having an argument with a friend of mine. He says roosters and hens have teeth. I say they do not. My friend insists that they MUST have teeth, even though they are not visible, or they would not be able to grind up their food to digest it.

Well, I don't know anything about how roosters and hens grind up their food, but I am almost certain they don't have teeth. Who is right?

NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: You are, but don't crow about it. Birds and fowl do NOT have teeth. The food they eat is broken down (or ground up) after it reaches their gizzards.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old liberated woman who is on the Pill. I've been paying for the pills myself, but I think my boyfriend should share half the cost. Problem is, I don't know him well enough to discuss money with him. Any advice?

SHY

DEAR SHY: Get to know him better. Then you'll be able to discuss anything with him.

DEAR ABBY: Nancy in San Clemente asks you to recommend that people have their pets neutered to keep them from running wild or being killed in the streets. She sounds like a typical neutering nut. I recommend keeping pets home where they belong. It will also prevent unwanted reproduction as well as annoyance to the neighborhood.

Neutering is unnecessary surgery. It is only for the convenience of lazy pet owners who don't care enough for their pets to properly supervise them.

AGAINST MUTILATION DEAR AGAINST: Properly supervising pets often take more time than most pet-owners can spare, so in the absence of such supervision, I view neutering as an act of kindness.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote that she had been approached often by people asking her "who she was mad at" because she never smiled. Then she went on to say that she had trouble smiling when there was nothing to smile about.

You told her that a smile was the universal language of friendliness, and you encouraged her to make a conscious effort to smile more often.

I have just finished sketching a sampler whose message is: "If you see someone without a smile, give them one of yours."

HELEN V.

DEAR HELEN: Beautiful. Thanks for sharing.

Public Service Company of New Hampshire, the state's largest utility, is seeking to build the $2 billion generating station.

Juvenile Offenders Program

The Juvenile Offenders program is the newest of several at PICCA, having been in operation since April.

To work on the program, the enrollee must be a juvenile offender between the ages of 16 and 18, and referred to us by the court system. Work sites are within the community and enrollees are paid minimum wages to do community type projects.

Supervision is emphasized to help train and guide the enrollee to become a productive part of society. At the present time, there are 6 persons working with three more to be added. If you have any questions concerning this program, please call Steve McGuire at the PICCA office between 1 and 5 p.m.

Food and Fellowship

Senior Food and Fellowship is growing in numbers almost daily. From a low of around 20 meals per day in January, we are now averaging 45 meals served each day.

On Monday, June 13, we all went to Ted Lewis Park for a very successful picnic. John Robinson supplied a bus for our use. Two more picnics are scheduled for later in the summer. There are also plans for some short, inexpensive field trips later on.

Another successful program was begun June 14. Free blood pressure checks were taken for about 55 people. Anyone is welcome to come in for the blood pressure checks located in the basement of the Eagles building, 135 E. Main. Our next scheduled date for blood pressures is Tuesday, June 28.

Planning is underway to open a satellite site in the county by the end of the summer or early fall. Anyone over 65 can sign up for the Golden Buckeye Card at the nutrition site, the library, the welfare department, many of the banks, and other locations in the county. Sign-ups for the Golden Buckeye Card are coming in often at Senior Food and Fellowship. Anyone 60 or over, come eat with us! For reservations or a free taxi ride to the site, call 474-8617.

Rent-A-Kid

Tired of being tied to chores? Give yourself a break. Hire a Rent-A-Kid to do the jobs for you. We have youths between the ages of 14 and 18 needing jobs. These youths are capable, and reliable, most of them have their own transportation. If you want a Rent-a-kid give us a call at the PICCA office at 474-1303. Some of the jobs they do are: babysitting, lawn care, caddying, housecleaning, ironing, painting, farm work, cars washed.

Job Corps

Jobs Corps is a government sponsored program for young men and women; 16 years old and not yet 22 years old. It is a program for underprivileged, school dropouts, unemployed, under employed, and high school graduates.

You will be able to develop skills and work habits that you will need to get and keep a good paying job. When you join Job Corps you will move to a Center away from home. If you are interested you may apply at the Picca Office, 165 East Main Street, Circleville, Ohio. If you need more information contact our office at 474-7452.

Fairview Church

VBS Scheduled

The Fairview United Methodist Church, Oakland-Stoutsville Road at 16th Road, will hold Vacation Bible School 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. June 20-24. The Bible School program will be held Saturday.

mornings. Showers may return again by Monday afternoon and continue through Tuesday.

Field Operations — Scattered showers are expected to delay field work across Ohio today and Sunday. Some showers could provide locally heavy rainfall amounts and delay field work into at least early next week. However, much of the state will receive light to moderate amounts. Field work is likely to resume Monday. Showers are expected to threaten again Monday afternoon.

Haying and Harvesting — Prospects are poor for crops that need to be field-dried, due to the frequent wetting from rainfall. Cultivation and other harvesting is likely between shower periods. An exception will be those scattered areas that could receive heavy rainfall amounts.

Corn and Soybean Prospects — Corn put in the ground before May 1 is showing beautiful stands. Corn planted since then is suffering due to the extended period of less than adequate rainfall for establishment. Agronomists at Ohio State University report that the time has passed when additional corn planting would be economically beneficial. It may even be too late to establish stands for silage in the north since moisture levels would not permit quality storage. Soybeans are being looked over closely. Many stands suffer from spotty germination, but it may not be necessary to replant. Reports are now indicating that additional germination and emergence of some seed that was in the ground up to four weeks has occurred.

Pickaway County has recorded $109,162.29 in motor vehicle sales taxes for May of 1977, compared to $77,612.05 for May of 1976. The difference amounts to $31,550.24, or 40.65 per cent.

On Monday, June 13, we all went to Ted Lewis Park for a very successful picnic. John Robinson supplied a bus for our use. Two more picnics are scheduled for later in the summer. There are also plans for some short, inexpensive field trips later on.
Another successful program was begun June 14. Free blood pressure checks were taken for about 55 people. Anyone is welcome to come in for the blood pressure checks located in the basement of the Eagles building, 135 E. Main. Our next scheduled date for blood pressures is Tuesday, June 28.
Planning is underway to open a satellite site in the county by the end of the summer or early fall. Anyone over 65 can sign up for the Golden Buckeye Card at the nutrition site, the library, the welfare department, many of the banks, and other locations in the county. Sign-ups for the Golden Buckeye Card are coming in often at Senior Food and Fellowship. Anyone 60 or over, come eat with us! For reservations or a free taxi ride to the site, call 474-8617.

Scattered Rainfall Will Help Farmers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Here is the agriculture weather advisory for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service:
Scattered showers and thundershowers are likely today as a cool frontal system pushes across Ohio. Some showers will linger in the south and east tonight. High pressure will provide cooler temperatures and lower humidities on Sunday and Monday mornings. Showers may return again by Monday afternoon and continue through Tuesday.

Field Operations — Scattered showers are expected to delay field work across Ohio today and Sunday. Some showers could provide locally heavy rainfall amounts and delay field work into at least early next week. However, much of the state will receive light to moderate amounts. Field work is likely to resume Monday. Showers are expected to threaten again Monday afternoon.

Haying and Harvesting — Prospects are poor for crops that need to be field-dried, due to the frequent wetting from rainfall. Cultivation and other harvesting is likely between shower periods. An exception will be those scattered areas that could receive heavy rainfall amounts.

Corn and Soybean Prospects — Corn put in the ground before May 1 is showing beautiful stands. Corn planted since then is suffering due to the extended period of less than adequate rainfall for establishment. Agronomists at Ohio State University report that the time has passed when additional corn planting would be economically beneficial. It may even be too late to establish stands for silage in the north since moisture levels would not permit quality storage. Soybeans are being looked over closely. Many stands suffer from spotty germination, but it may not be necessary to replant. Reports are now indicating that additional germination and emergence of some seed that was in the ground up to four weeks has occurred.

State Releases May Tax Report

Gertrude Donahey, treasurer of the state of Ohio, has released the county sales tax and motor vehicle sales tax report for the month of May.

Pickaway County totalled $132,899.53 in sales taxes, compared with $110,253.36 in May of 1976. The difference amounts to $22,646.17, or 20.54 per cent.

To date in fiscal 1977, the county has recorded $1,184,629.92, compared to $1,048,637.39 for the same time in fiscal 1976. The difference is $135,992.53, or 12.96 per cent.

Pickaway County has recorded $109,162.29 in motor vehicle sales taxes for May of 1977, compared to $77,612.05 for May of 1976. The difference amounts to $31,550.24, or 40.65 per cent.

For fiscal 1977, the county has recorded $910,229.58 in motor vehicle sales taxes, compared to $775,849.77 for the same date in fiscal 1976. The difference is $134,379.81, or 20.42 per cent.

Sally Little Shares Lead In LPGA Tilt

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) —

South Africa's Sally Little may be on the brink of proving that countryman Gary Player is as sharp at spotting golf talent as he is at playing the game.

"He didn't help me with instructions," said the 25-year-old, who now calls Dallas home. "But when I was growing up he would always come down to where I lived (about 1,000 miles away) and play some practice rounds with me."

"To a kid of 14 or 15, it really kept me going. He would tell me that if I kept playing like I was, I could be on the American tour. I don't think I would ever have thought about coming here if he hadn't put the bug in my ear."

Friday that talent was evident as she birdied five of her last eight holes to earn a share of the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Harbor Trees.

She and veteran Donna Caponi Young held a one-stroke advantage over Judy Rankin after opening the $50,000 tourney on the 6,044-yard, par-72 course with five under 67s.

There could have been a three-way tie, but Miss Rankin missed a two-foot putt.

Benjamin Trevis Scioto Winner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Benjamin Trevis took the lead in the stretch and charged to a three-length victory in the featured race at Scioto Downs Friday night.

The winner, circling the mile in 2:01 2-5, paid $5, $3.40 and $3. Shadow Warrior returned $7.40 and $4.40 for second and Gayn, $3 for show.

The 3-2 daily double combination of Steady Express and Dugaree was worth $1266.20 and the 5-9-3 trifecta paid $476.70.

A crowd of 7,088 wagered $474,371.

Reds Close In On Dodgers

MONTREAL (AP) — There was a time when the Cincinnati Reds looked to first baseman Tony Perez as their main runproducing hitter.

But with the trade of Perez to the Montreal Expos last winter, the Reds had to look somewhere else for their top run production, and the job has fallen on the shoulders of left fielder George Foster.

Foster slammed his 16th and 17th home runs of the season Friday night, helping the Reds smash the Expos 9-4 and extend their winning streak to six games, their longest of the season.

The victory moved the Reds to within 6½ games of Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers lost to the Chicago Cubs 7-3 Friday night.

In his last 22 games, Foster has driven in 31 runs and has hit safely in 20 of the 22 games, getting 30 hits in 84 at-bats for a .357 average. He now has 52 runs batted in, close to the league lead in that department.

Last season, Foster drove in 121 runs and had 29 homers with a .306 batting average. So far this year, Foster is hitting .315.

"After losing a guy like Perez, who could hit 20 to 25 homers a year, I felt that I was one of the guys who should be able to pick up the slack," Foster said.

"There are many ways to drive in runs, but I figured that I would be one of the guys they would be counting on to hit home runs. Now when I get the pitch to hit, I will go for a home run."

Foster's first homer of the game was a three-run shot which erased a 3-1 Montreal lead in the fifth inning. It came off losing pitcher Steve Rogers after Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen had singled with two out.

In the top of the ninth, Foster blasted Bill Atkinson's first pitch of the inning to provide the Reds with their final run.

Foster's home run total is one short of the league lead held by Jeff Burroughs of Atlanta, but Foster says he is not competing with Burroughs or anybody else in the home run or RBI derby.

"I feel that I have come a long way and have a long way to go," he said. "I'm not thinking about competing against those other guys. I'm competing against myself."

"I'm pushing myself to keep going out there and grinding, grinding. I want to better last year's season."

The Expos grabbed a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first on Ellis Valentine's run-scoring single but the Reds tied it in the top of the third on Morgan's RBI single.

A run-scoring single by Perez and Gary Carter's sacrifice fly put Montreal ahead 3-1 in the bottom of the third before Foster delivered his blow.

The Reds added four more runs in the sixth with Pete Rose driving in two with a triple before the Expos got one in the eighth on a double by Perez and Carter's run-scoring single.

Foster then wrapped up the scoring in the ninth.

Jack Billingham, 8-3, gained credit for the victory with relief help from Dale Murray, who pitched the last 1 2-3 innings.

basketball program. The squad finished with an 18-0 record. Team members included Brian Fath, Randy Arledge, Bryan Price, Dave Phillips, Mearle Logan, Dave Wylie, and Dudley Speakman.

Hubert Green Opens Lead In Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The 77th U.S. Open lost some of its togetherness at the 36-hole mark Friday with Hubert Green breaking out of a seven-player pact to grab the lead and grim Gary Player moving into position to make good his vow to join Jack Nicklaus as golf history's only double Grand Slam winners.

Green one-putted eight holes in firing a three-under-par 67 on Southern Hill Country Club's par-70 layout for a 136 total, four under par.

Young Terry Diehl was a stroke behind at 137 with a 68 and Tom Purtzer, yet to win a tour event, shot a second straight 69 for 138.

Player mastered the 6,873-yard course with a 67 and was tied at 139 with left-hander Sam Adams, who had 69, and Rod Funseth, 70.

Nicklaus eagled the 569-yard par-five 16th and shot 68 to lurk six shots back of the leader at 142, which is exactly where Arnold Palmer was after a 72.

Only four players have won the Grand Slam of the Masters, the British Open, the PGA and the U.S. Open—

Nicklaus, Player, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen. Hogan was the only man to do it in one year.

Nicklaus won each of the four major tournaments at least twice. He owns two British titles, three U.S. Opens, four PGAs and five Masters. Player won his only U.S. Open in 1965 and said: "I have been pointing toward winning it ever since."

Nicklaus moved into contention by hitting a one-iron second shot to the 569-yard, par-five 16th and canning a 10-foot putt.

Defending champion Jerry Pate made one mistake too many by double bogeying the roundly-cursed final hole for the second consecutive day for a 76 and 148. He missed the cut by a stroke.

The 449-yard, par-four closing hole, which produced over 100 bogeys or worse in the 153-man field on the first day, presented a different challenge Friday. The tees were moved up and, with a south wind gusting to 25 miles an hour, many players—such as Nicklaus—drove through the fairway and into the Bermuda rough, which is like hitting out of steel wool.

Pat Zachry Loses On Randle Bobble

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Zachry is a hard-talking, hard-throwing right-handed pitcher who was thrust into the glare of the New York spotlight by the trade which sent Tom Seaver to Cincinnati in exchange for Zachry, shortstop Doug Flynn and outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman.

Friday night, against the Houston Astros, Zachry took over Seaver's spot in the Mets' rotation with a very large question mark hovering about him.

"I want to know if he can throw as hard as he talks, quipped Joe Torre, the Mets' manager. "We had Joe McDonald, our general manager, call Cincinnati and ask Bob Howsam (the Reds' president) as to the condition of Zachry's arm. He says it is sound and that Pat is ready to pitch."

The 25-year-old Zachry pitched six innings against Houston and lost to Floyd Bannister, who just a year ago was the No. 1 pick in the annual free agent draft. An error by third baseman Lenny Randle paved the way for three unearned Houston runs in the fifth inning, leading to a 7-1 Astro victory.

The 6-foot-5, 175-pound Zachry was tied 1-1, when trouble erupted with two out in the Astro fifth inning. Enos Cabell doubled to left and Zachry walked Jose Cruz. Joe Ferguson grounded to third. Randle bobbled the ball which took a bad hop, allowing Ferguson to reach first and loading the bases. Randle was charged with an error.

Bob Watson then singled to left, scoring Cabell and Cruz and when Art Howe singled to right for another run, Zachry, 3-8, was a loser again.

The new Met was 14-7 with a 2.74 ERA last year, and also won a game in the championship series and the World Series. He was operated on in January for a hernia, and was unable to throw in the winter as a result.

"I did my best, although I felt I owed the people here a win," said Zachry. "It might be a long season, but I'll try my best every time. I know the fans expect a lot. They lost a Tom Seaver and got a Pat Zachry. But I will try and not let that bother me. Everyone connected with the Mets has gone out of their way to let me know I was wanted."

Sally Little Shares Lead In LPGA Tilt

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — South Africa's Sally Little may be on the brink of proving that countryman Gary Player is as sharp at spotting golf talent as he is at playing the game.

"He didn't help me with instructions," said the 25-year-old, who now calls Dallas home. "But when I was growing up he would always come down to where I lived (about 1,000 miles away) and play some practice rounds with me.

"To a kid of 14 or 15, it really kept me going. He would tell me that if I kept playing like I was, I could be on the American tour. I don't think I would ever have thought about coming here if he hadn't put the bug in my ear."

Friday that talent was evident as she birdied five of her last eight holes to earn a share of the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Harbor Trees.

She and veteran Donna Caponi Young held a one-stroke advantage over Judy Rankin after opening the $50,000 tourney on the 6,044-yard, par-72 course with five under 67s.

There could have been a three-way tie, but Miss Rankin missed a two-foot putt.

Benjamin Trevis

Scioto Winner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Benjamin Trevis took the lead in the stretch and charged to a three-length victory in the featured race at Scioto Downs Friday night.

The winner, circling the mile in 2:01 2-5, paid $5, $3.40 and $3. Shadow Warrior returned $7.40 and $4.40 for second and Gayn, $3 for show.

The 3-2 daily double combination of Steady Express and Dungere was worth $1266.20 and the 5-9-3 trifecta paid $476.70.

A crowd of 7,088 wagered $474,371.

Reds Close In On Dodgers

MONTREAL (AP) — There was a time when the Cincinnati Reds looked to first baseman Tony Perez as their main runproducing hitter.

But with the trade of Perez to the Montreal Expos last winter, the Reds had to look somewhere else for their top run production, and the job has fallen on the shoulders of left fielder George Foster.

Foster slammed his 16th and 17th home runs of the season Friday night, helping the Reds smash the Expos 9-4 and extend their winning streak to six games, their longest of the season.

The victory moved the Reds to within 6½ games of Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers lost to the Chicago Cubs 7-3 Friday night.

In his last 22 games, Foster has driven in 31 runs and has hit safely in 20 of the 22 games, getting 30 hits in 84 at-bats for a .357 average. He now has 52 runs batted in, close to the league lead in that department.

Last season, Foster drove in 121 runs and had 29 homers with a .306 batting average. So far this year, Foster is hitting .315.

"After losing a guy like Perez, who could hit 20 to 25 homers a year, I felt that I was one of the guys who should be able to pick up the slack," Foster said.

"There are many ways to drive in runs, but I figured that I would be one of the guys they would be counting on to hit home runs. Now when I get the pitch to hit, I will go for a home run."

Foster's first homer of the game was a three-run shot which erased a 3-1 Montreal lead in the fifth inning. It came off losing pitcher Steve Rogers after Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen had singled with two out.

In the top of the ninth, Foster blasted Bill Atkinson's first pitch of the inning to provide the Reds with their final run.

Foster's home run total is one short of the league lead held by Jeff Burroughs of Atlanta, but Foster says he is not competing with Burroughs or anybody else in the home run or RBI derby.

"I feel that I have come a long way and have a long way to go," he said. "I'm not thinking about competing against those other guys. I'm competing against myself."

"I'm pushing myself to keep going out there and grinding, grinding. I want to better last year's season."

The Expos grabbed a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first on Ellis Valentine's run-scoring single but the Reds tied it in the top of the third on Morgan's RBI single.

A run-scoring single by Perez and Gary Carter's sacrifice fly put Montreal ahead 3-1 in the bottom of the third before Foster delivered his blow.

The Reds added four more runs in the sixth with Pete Rose driving in two with a triple before the Expos got one in the eighth on a double by Perez and Carter's run-scoring single.

Foster then wrapped up the scoring in the ninth.

Jack Billingham, 8-3, gained credit for the victory with relief help from Dale Murray, who pitched the last 1 2-3 innings.

basketball program. The squad finished with an 18-0 record. Team members included Brian Fath, Randy Arledge, Bryan Price, Dave Phillips, Mearle Logan, Dave Wylie, and Dudley Speakman.

Hubert Green Opens Lead In Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The 77th U.S. Open lost some of its togetherness at the 36-hole mark Friday with Hubert Green breaking out of a seven-player pact to grab the lead and grim Gary Player moving into position to make good his vow to join Jack Nicklaus as golf history's only double Grand Slam winners.

Green one-putted eight holes in firing a three-under-par 67 on Southern Hill Country Club's par-70 layout for a 136 total, four under par.

Young Terry Diehl was a stroke behind at 137 with a 68 and Tom Purtzer, yet to win a tour event, shot a second straight 69 for 138.

Player mastered the 6,873-yard course with a 67 and was tied at 139 with left-hander Sam Adams, who had 69, and Rod Funseth, 70.

Nicklaus eagled the 569-yard par-five 16th and shot 68 to lurk six shots back of the leader at 142, which is exactly where Arnold Palmer was after a 72.

Only four players have won the Grand Slam of the Masters, the British Open, the PGA and the U.S. Open—

Nicklaus, Player, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen. Hogan was the only man to do it in one year.

Nicklaus won each of the four major tournaments at least twice. He owns two British titles, three U.S. Opens, four PGAs and five Masters. Player won his only U.S. Open in 1965 and said: "I have been pointing toward winning it ever since."

Nicklaus moved into contention by hitting a one-iron second shot to the 569-yard, par-five 16th and canning a 10-foot putt.

Defending champion Jerry Pate made one mistake too many by double bogeying the roundly-cursed final hole for the second consecutive day for a 76 and 148. He missed the cut by a stroke.

The 449-yard, par-four closing hole, which produced over 100 bogeys or worse in the 153-man field on the first day, presented a different challenge Friday. The tees were moved up and, with a south wind gusting to 25 miles an hour, many players—such as Nicklaus—drove through the fairway and into the Bermuda rough, which is like hitting out of steel wool.

Pat Zachry Loses On Randle Bobble

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Zachry is a hard-talking, hard-throwing right-handed pitcher who was thrust into the glare of the New York spotlight by the trade which sent Tom Seaver to Cincinnati in exchange for Zachry, shortstop Doug Flynn and outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman.

Friday night, against the Houston Astros, Zachry took over Seaver's spot in the Mets' rotation with a very large question mark hovering about him.

"I want to know if he can throw as hard as he talks, quipped Joe Torre, the Mets' manager. "We had Joe McDonald, our general manager, call Cincinnati and ask Bob Howsam (the Reds' president) as to the condition of Zachry's arm. He says it is sound and that Pat is ready to pitch."

The 25-year-old Zachry pitched six innings against Houston and lost to Floyd Bannister, who just a year ago was the No. 1 pick in the annual free agent draft. An error by third baseman Lenny Randle paved the way for three unearned Houston runs in the fifth inning, leading to a 7-1 Astro victory.

The 6-foot-5, 175-pound Zachry was tied 1-1, when trouble erupted with two out in the Astro fifth inning. Enos Cabell doubled to left and Zachry walked Jose Cruz. Joe Ferguson grounded to third. Randle bobbled the ball which took a bad hop, allowing Ferguson to reach first and loading the bases. Randle was charged with an error. Bob Watson then singled to left, scoring Cabell and Cruz and when Art Howe singled to right for another run, Zachry, 3-8, was a loser again.

The new Met was 14-7 with a 2.74 ERA last year, and also won a game in the championship series and the World Series. He was operated on in January for a hernia, and was unable to throw in the winter as a result.

"I did my best, although I felt I owed the people here a win," said Zachry. "It might be a long season, but I'll try my best every time. I know the fans expect a lot. They lost a Tom Seaver and got a Pat Zachry. But I will try and not let that bother me. Everyone connected with the Mets has gone out of their way to let me know I was wanted."

New Saccharin-Cancer Link Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says a new Canadian study linking saccharin to bladder cancer in men reinforces its decision to ban the artificial sweetener and may change the minds of some of the ban's critics.

The unpublished study, by Canada's

National Cancer Institute and four universities, shows that men who use saccharin or artificial cyclamate sweeteners have a 60 per cent higher chance of developing bladder cancer than those who do not.

Attempts by a Senate health subcommittee to delay the effective date of the proposed ban "will be held in abeyance" until the new study is evaluated, a spokesman for the panel's chairman said Friday. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., heads the subcommittee.

The FDA proposed the ban last March on the strength of an earlier Canadian study showing a link between cancer and laboratory animals fed huge amounts of saccharin.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said Friday the new study "clearly draws an association between using saccharin and bladder cancer in humans."

Pines said most of the 130,000 persons who contacted the FDA to comment on the proposed ban have opposed the move. He suggested the new findings may change their minds.

Many "questioned the scientific validity of the animal studies," Pines said. "There appears to be some belief that there is no correlation between animal studies and human beings."

The new study, Pines said, "will help the public understand that saccharin poses a potential cancer threat and supports our position that it should be eliminated in bulk form."

In the new Canadian study, 480 men who had bladder cancer were asked about their lifetime diet habits. The study showed men who used artificial sweeteners and smoked cigarettes had the highest incidence of cancer. Cancer victims who smoked were found eight times as often as those who used saccharin or cyclamates.

The study, planned for publication in Lancet, a British medical journal, found no increased cancer risk for women using artificial sweetener.

The new study differs from the conclusions of researchers at Johns Hopkins University. The research group, which studied more than 1,000 persons over a four-year period, concluded consumption of saccharin did not have a significant effect on the development of bladder cancer.

Pines said the FDA would examine the report in detail before implementing the ban.

Report 6 Deaths In African Violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Six blacks in two segregated townships near the South African coast have been killed by police gunfire, pushing to nine the number of blacks killed in two days of scattered rioting in this white-ruled nation.

Thirty-three persons were wounded in confrontations with police Friday while property damage totaled an estimated $1.5 million in the black townships of Kwanobuhle and Kabah, outside the white city of Uitenhage 500 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Some 278 blacks were arrested in a police sweep of Kwanobuhle.

Police Brig. P.J. Hugo, head of riot control for the townships, said officers shot and killed five blacks trying to loot a Kwanobuhle liquor store. One rioter was fatally wounded in Kabah.

Police said another black was killed Friday, but the circumstances of his death weren't explained. Two blacks died when a store they allegedly were looting caught fire Thursday night, police said.

Another 29 persons have been reported shot and injured since Thursday, when militant students called for a general strike to mark the anniversary of last year's racial upheaval in which more than 600 blacks and three whites were killed.

In Soweto, the country's largest black township 10 miles south of Johannesburg, police used tear gas Friday to disperse rock-throwing youths.

Calm was reported in other black townships Friday and Brig. Jan F. Visser, Soweto's white police chief, said things were "leveling off." He predicted tension would ease over the weekend in Soweto, home of 1 million persons.

He also said police would continue to disperse any gatherings.

The rioting in the southern townships began with rock-throwing Thursday in Kabah. Looting and arson followed and spread to Kwanobuhle. Police said they didn't know what triggered the violence.

Some 40,000 blacks live in Kabah and Kwanobuhle. Many work in automobile plants at Uitenhage and Port Elizabeth, on the coast 20 miles away and the scene of extensive rioting last year.

The cart is valued at $40.

Lawrence Harter, 368 Monticello St., told Deputy Franklin that thieves attempted to gain entry to his house about 9 a.m. Friday.

New Saccharin-Cancer Link Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says a new Canadian study linking saccharin to bladder cancer in men reinforces its decision to ban the artificial sweetener and may change the minds of some of the ban's critics.

The unpublished study, by Canada's

National Cancer Institute and four universities, shows that men who use saccharin or artificial cyclamate sweeteners have a 60 per cent higher chance of developing bladder cancer than those who do not.

Attempts by a Senate health subcommittee to delay the effective date of the proposed ban "will be held in abeyance" until the new study is evaluated, a spokesman for the panel's chairman said Friday. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., heads the subcommittee.

The FDA proposed the ban last March on the strength of an earlier Canadian study showing a link between cancer and laboratory animals fed huge amounts of saccharin.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said Friday the new study "clearly draws an association between using saccharin and bladder cancer in humans."

Pines said most of the 130,000 persons who contacted the FDA to comment on the proposed ban have opposed the move. He suggested the new findings may change their minds.

Many "questioned the scientific validity of the animal studies," Pines said. "There appears to be some belief that there is no correlation between animal studies and human beings."

The new study, Pines said, "will help the public understand that saccharin poses a potential cancer threat and supports our position that it should be eliminated in bulk form."

In the new Canadian study, 480 men who had bladder cancer were asked about their lifetime diet habits. The study showed men who used artificial sweeteners and smoked cigarettes had the highest incidence of cancer. Cancer victims who smoked were found eight times as often as those who used saccharin or cyclamates.

The study, planned for publication in Lancet, a British medical journal, found no increased cancer risk for women using artificial sweetener.

The new study differs from the conclusions of researchers at Johns Hopkins University. The research group, which studied more than 1,000 persons over a four-year period, concluded consumption of saccharin did not have a significant effect on the development of bladder cancer.

Pines said the FDA would examine the report in detail before implementing the ban.
